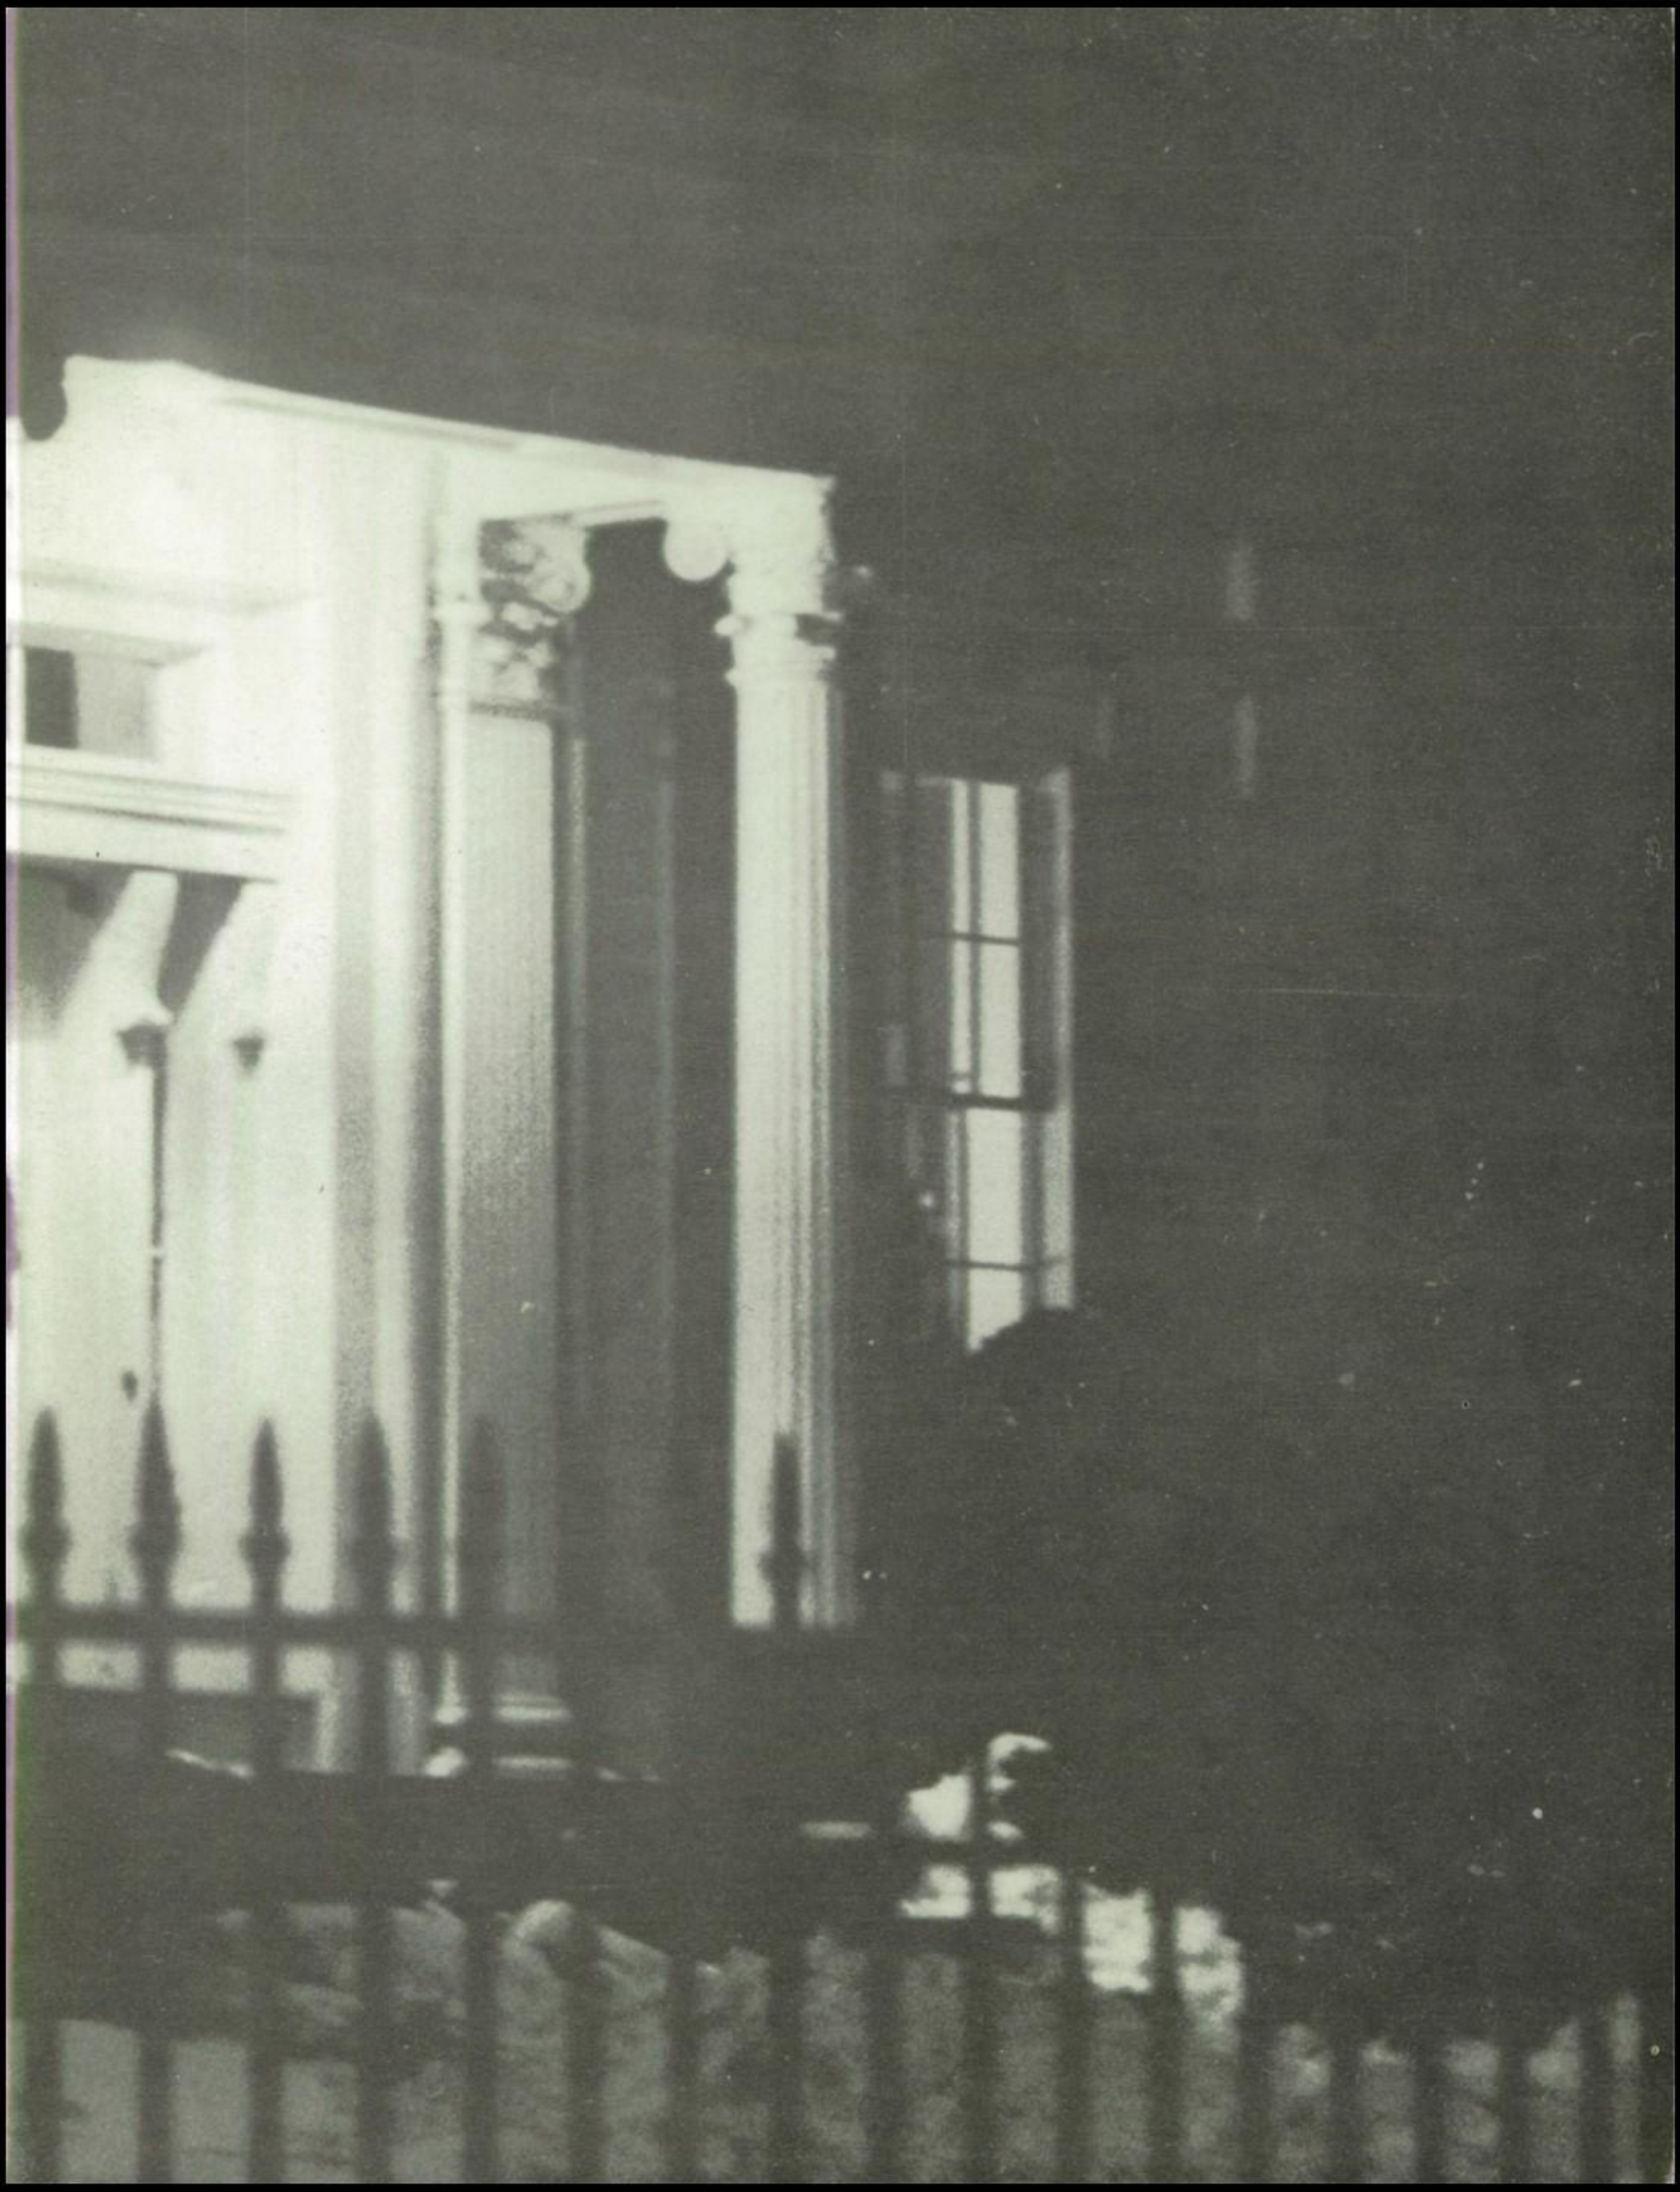
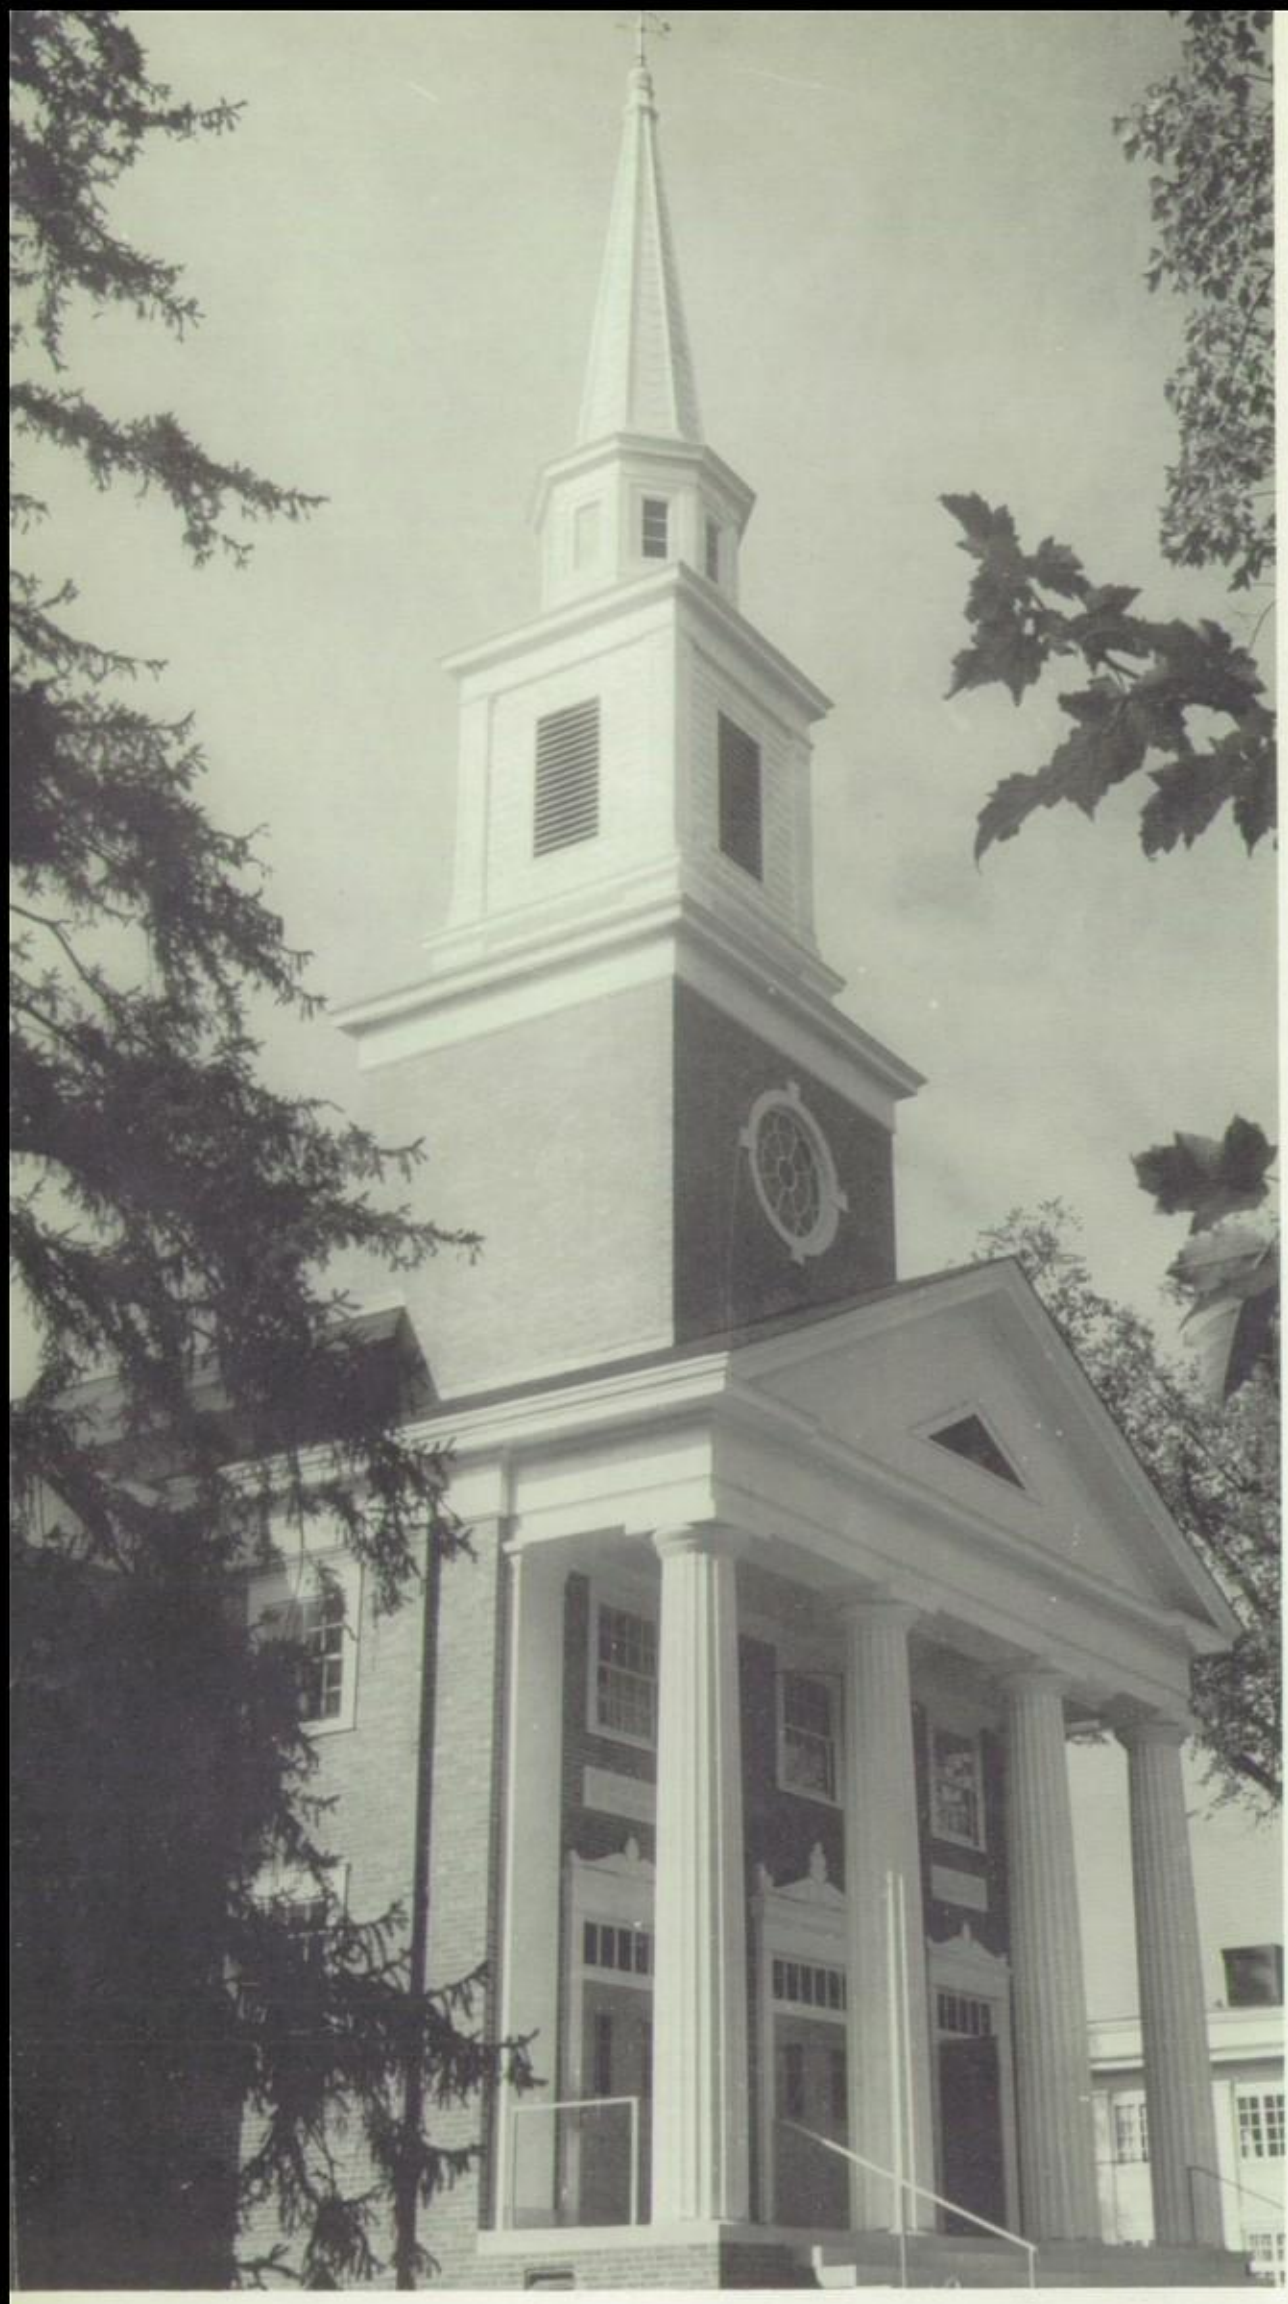
EASTHAMPTON, MASSACHUSETTS





Williston's impressive, new chapel.

Preface

Growth is a meaningful and a manifest part of Williston. Clearly, it is a physical reality, but it is also unconsciously, but deeply, stressed in Williston's programs. Boys develop academically, athletically, morally, and socially. As Williston expands, moving ever forward toward the future, it gives its students the opportunity to seek their personal directions into that future. Forward motion is the key to the developments of both Williston and its students. A team searches for victory after defeat; a student strives to succeed following failures; and the school builds, to keep up with the present and prepare for the future. Growth at Williston is an incessant process, a characteristic necessity.

THE WILLISTON PRAYER

Almighty God, our Father, we pause a moment in our busy school life, and ask Thee to give us reverent and grateful hearts, as we turn to Thee in prayer.

We thank Thee for the heritage that, through the years, has come down to us from the Founders, that our Williston is a school where young men may strive for and attain sound learning, strong manhood, and useful citizenship.

We thank Thee for the joys of living, and for the abounding energies in the bodies Thou has given us, help us to keep them strong in Thy service, and clean as the dwelling-places of Thy spirit. Keep us true to the best that is within us, and strong to do the things worth doing and to put aside all that is unworthy.

Endue with Thy wisdom those who teach and those who learn here, and grant that in humility of heart, we may all together look up to Thee, the Source of all knowledge and wisdom.

Blessed Lord, give us strength and give us courage, that now and always, we may quit us like men, and ever show ourselves worthy of our heritage and of Thy great love.

Mr. Gebhard corrects boardwork.

DEDICATION

A man does not receive the tribute of a dedication merely because he has fulfilled certain requirements. He must have earned the sincere respect, appreciation, and regard of not only his pupils, but also of close friends and acquaintances. As a quiet, but devoted, man, Mr. Louis A. Gebhard has become a beloved institution at Williston.

After graduating from Blair Academy, Mr. Gebhard attended Lafayette College, where he was an all-star fullback on the football team. Coming to Williston in 1947, he used his athletic ability and experience to coach football, basketball, and baseball.

As a teacher, Mr. Gebhard excels. Few instructors anywhere can boast more thorough knowledge of what they are teaching than he. However, Mr. Gebhard does not believe that he alone can teach his pupils, and he has each student become an instrument of learning for the rest of the class by the daily boardwork he requires of each boy. With every student doing a different problem and with the whole class then focusing their attention on each problem, a complete understanding of the course is acquired.

As a coach, a teacher, and the Head of the Mathematics Department, Mr. Louis A. Gebhard has justly earned the respect and gratitude of everyone at Williston. His efforts have helped give the school the reputation it has today.

Over the years, the great progress of Williston's physical expansion and academic excellence can be attributed to the Board of Trustees. The Board is directly responsible for the great progress which Williston has made.

The Board of Trustees was originally founded by the Constitution of Williston Academy, and its members consisted of clergymen and laymen. Today the committee's members are widely distributed throughout the New England area and of its twenty-seven members, seventeen are graduates of Williston.

During the Board's annual meeting, the members examined the condition of the Academy, secured the safety of the funds, observed the officers of trust performing their duties and transacted business matters. The Board also appoints Williston's leadership, electing teachers and administrators whenever necessary.

The physical expansion of Williston, once a dream, has become a reality. The recent construction of the Science Building, the John P. Wright House, the dining room extension, the Williston Chapel, and the Masters' Rink are evidences of the rapid improvement and growth at Williston. These projects, as well as the gradual modernization of the senior dormitory, Ford Hall, are directly attributed to the work of the Board of Trustees, who keep the standards of Williston high.

The Board of Overseers, created nine years ago as a subordinate committee to the Board of Trustees, is an immensely vital committee devoted to the expansion of Williston's facilities. This dutiful organization is composed of many enthusiastic professional people and business men of multiple scholastic backgrounds. As a result of the multiplicity and adeptness of its members, the Board was able to function properly and coped with all the intricate and important projects of this past school year.

Members of this Board visit frequently throughout the year in order that they might examine Williston's financial and scholastic status. In their May meeting the Board discusses the prospective improvements that they will suggest to the Board of Trustees. Overseers perform the following duties: they enlist people interested in the welfare of Williston, acquaint persons with Williston's problems, and develop future candidates for the Board of Trustees.

The Board of Overseers has had an efficacious program because of its diversified membership. Twelve members are connected with educational institutions, fourteen are affiliated with business, and various judges and attorneys all give professional advice in each of their fields. These unselfish members devoted much of themselves and their time in a relentless effort to help Williston improve as an excellent institution.

From The Headmaster

As the school has continued to grow in numbers and the facilities have expanded, we have been able to much more for boys. Their opportunity now for development through academic, social, and athletic ways the broadest it has been at Williston. We had an idea when we decided to go ahead with the Indoor Athle Building that artificial ice would be a great boon to the spirit, facility, and opportunity in the school. T Masters' Rink has gone beyond our initial expectation. Also, the Williston Chapel, completed in June of 196 gives Williston students an opportunity to spend a few quiet moments in meditation in its dignified atmosphe Many have said a prayer therein for the school and its future.

It would be so easy for us at Williston to lose sight of our position. It is so easy to take for granted t physical facilities which the dreams and sacrifices of others have provided. What we must never forget is th with this increasing opportunity comes an increasing responsibility. This issue of the Log reflects what t Williston family has done to make an increasing opportunity available for 450 boys in this academic year, 196 1965. It says something of the work of the Y-Cabinet in service to others, the work of the Student Council leadership in school affairs, the work of the Dramatic Club, Glee Club, Choir, and all the rest: organizatio designed to help boys to grow up and to bring pleasure and knowledge to others. It is true to say that a b comes to Williston to get ready for college academically. But, we feel that this is only part of it. One of the m important aspects which we emphasize constantly is that a Williston boy is privileged as few others are to have opportunity to live and work with dedicated men in an effort to find the best ways to get on with the job. T only way he can ever repay the school for what it has done for him is through his service to his Communi his State, and his Country in the future. He owes this to society. If Williston's atmosphere has meant anythi to him at all during his undergraduate years here, it has been that he is not permitted to withdraw from socie but rather to do all he can to aid its peaceful growth. This is the real proof that the Williston experience h been worthwhile.

Sincerely,
PHILLIPS STEVENS, 1964-1965

English Department Excels

Individual thinking and extensive reading were the chief purposes of the English Department this year. The English three and four courses read advanced material, such as would be read on the college level. English five read additional plays, short stories, and novels, and stressed the study of each student's individual literary interests. Senior students were required to write a thesis which culminated the sense of literary criticism developed at Williston.

In the English Department, grammar, reading skills, and creative writing were presented to the student as a basis for further English study. By regular comprehensive and critical reading evaluation, the Williston English Department introduced to all its students a valid thinking process.

Broad Program in History

The History Department, under Mr. Archibald L. Hepworth's tutelage, offers the Williston student a broad background in history of all peoples. Mr. Henry Teller conducted for the fifth year his college-like Russian Civilization course for Upper Middlers, and Mr. Hepworth taught Seniors the advanced placement American History course.

Two highlights of this year were the addition of Mr. Robert C. Varnum, '60, to the Department and the appointment of Mr. Edward M. Lawton as Assistant Head of the History Department.

As has been the custom for several years, the Department showed bi-weekly movies, and Mr. Hepworth addressed the school on current events every two weeks. Experience and new ideas make the History Department a fascinating, broadening organization.

Bible Interpretation

Culture in our Western Judeo-Christian society could not be understood without a background of the Bible. At Williston, students begin their scholastic endeavors with the study of the Old and New Testaments. The basis of much modern as well as other literature uses references from and implications to parts of the Bible, and with this foundation, more complex and advanced reading is encompassed by Williston students.

The textbook, Alice Parmelee's A Guidebook to the Bible, supplemented the regular reading in its historical background, presenting pertinent information regarding the various international national, economical, and political circumstances surrounding the origin of the Bible. It also delved into the personal background and circumstances of the individual authors of the Bible.

Oral Method in Languages

For the past few years, the emphasis in the teaching of modern languages has been on the oral method. Mr. Frank W. Putnam, Head of the Modern Languages Department, was the innovator of this system at Williston. The $10,000 Putnam Language Center, now in its fourth year, helps students develop correct pronunciation and intonation.

The French Department, under its new head, Mr. Kendrick Heath, boasted two new instructors. Mr. Andrew S. Lapidus taught French I, II, and III this year and Mrs. Yves Couderc taught French I and II.

The Modern Language Department, with its oral method, gives each student the opportunity to gain a proficiency in speaking a modern language, whether it be French, Spanish, or German.

Classics Stress History

The Classics Department offers every lower classman a sound foundation in Latin. The study of Latin aids students in their English vocabulary and grammar, as well as provides a solid basis for the students' study of a modern language.

Even though the stress today has swayed to modern languages, Williston retains a strong emphasis on Latin. Most students take two years of Latin, and some continue to a study of Cicero's orations in the third year.

Mr. William J. Lossone, a veteran of forty-three years at Williston and the department head, instructed the first and second year students this year.

Latin not only teaches boys about some of the great men of history, but it also helps students develop good study habits.

"Books on the floor . . ." — Mr. Lossone.

Mathematics Develops Logical System

The Williston Mathematics Department, led by Mr Gebhard, offered courses that gave every student the basics of mathematics as well as challenged the talented student. Modern mathematics was introduced into the curriculum on a full scale. Before, it had been used only in Algebra I as an experiment.

Again this year, Mr. Hebert taught the Math V course which was an advanced placement course for seniors. In addition, Mr. Hebert took over the Math IV-Honors section. This course, offered only to a few select seniors, was designed to prepare these students better for college mathematics.

Mr. Culver again taught the accelerated courses Math II-III and Math III-IV. A new master, Mr. Cody strengthened this program with his previous experience teaching the new mathematics.

Experimental Analysis In Science

The Williston Science Department presents students with the fundamental scientific laws and theories. Especially gifted Seniors may take advanced placement chemistry after having studied the regular physics and chemistry courses.

The physics course at Williston is taught by Mr. Brown, '55, Mr. Archbald, and a new instructor, Mr. Yves Couderc, who also teaches regular chemistry.

The modern physics offered at Williston is highly theoretical. In order that the student may grasp the theories more easily, standardized experiments were added to the course.

Mr. Seward Highley, '51, who teaches physical science and biology, was appointed Head of the Science Department this year.

Music Appreciation

Music has become an integral part of Williston's cultural experiences. Redundant date memorization was excluded from the music course, while the aesthetic values of music were acquired and utilized in class discussions. Mr. Gregory headed the course and instructed his students with the aid of Paul Hindemith's book Four Part Harmony. Musical terms, theory, history, compositions, and the basis and construction of harmonic patterns made the course diversified and copiously cultural.

Williston's musical interests manifested themselves through many media; the band played at home football games and assisted in accompanying the operetta in the Spring Term. Music was produced on more individual levels by avid guitar players; lessons teaching rudimentary chords were given to novices.

Creative Effort In Manual Arts

Mr. Peter Richmond directed the manual arts course. Students of the three lower classes took the manual arts course as a basic part of the Williston curriculum, and thus, they had the opportunity to develop their manual abilities. Although the course met only once a week, students acquired the rudiments of shop work and made several projects.

Encouraging students to be creative, Mr. Richmond helped the students put their artistic ability into practical projects. Using his skill to the utmost, he constructed some of the scenery which was needed for Dramatic Club plays.

The modern manual arts room equipped the student with woodworking machines satisfying his every need. Under Mr. Richmond's guidance, boys mingled creativity and artistry with practicality.

Graphic Arts-
Expression Through Design

The mechanical drawing course was ably administered by Mr. James Gardner. This course met five periods a week for two years. In the first year the student learned the fundamentals of drawing, progressing from lettering to geometric construction. The second year course consisted of perspective drawing, drafting, advanced design including solid figures, and a study of the history of architecture in the Mediterranean, South Africa, and Europe.

Mr. Gardner also offered a class in anatomy to interested students. In this course, the anatomical forms of the human body were compared with architectural designs. In addition, he taught free-hand drawing, painting, carving, sculpture, and work with stained glass. Unselfishly serving the school through his many courses, Mr. Gardner added to the cultural growth of the Williston student.

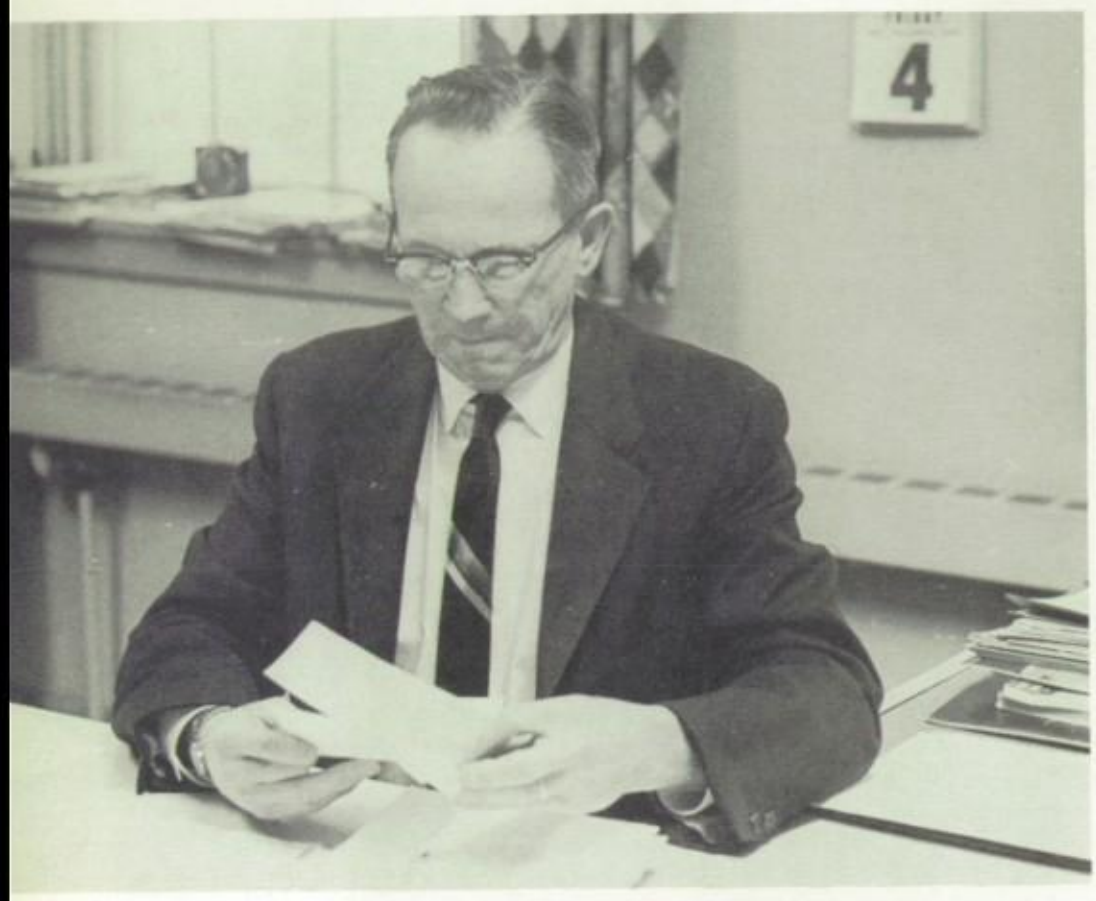
Intricate Business Department



Mr. Babcock balances expenses.

Under the direction of Mr. Babcock, the business office continued to keep the school's financial matters in good order. The total transactions of the business office this past year amounted to over five million dollars. Included in the transactions were the payment of all the school employees, except the teachers, and the purchasing of the school's supplies. Over the course of the school year, Williston's supplies included all the classroom equipment, athletic equipment, and food. The business office also handled the school's insurance and investments.

The work in the business office proved to be so formidable this year that a new position had to be created. Serving in only a part-time capacity, Mr. Archbald was appointed Assistant Business Manager. Also forming an integral part of the business staff were: Miss Tourville, our bookkeeper; our secretaries, Miss Markley, Mrs. Johnson, and Mrs. Banas; and switchboard operators Miss Merrick, Mrs. Pepin, and Mrs. Stasz.

It was only through the tireless work of Mr. Babcock and his staff that the school's numerous, complicated business matters were kept running as a smooth operation this past school year.

Admissions-A Williston Beginning

Mr. St. George studies an applicant's transcript.

The Williston Admissions Office was struck a grievous blow by the sudden death of Mr. James H. Shepardson, the long-time, amiable Head of Admissions. However, the arduous task of interviewing and selecting candidates had to continue, and Mr. Robert St. George was appointed the new Head of the Admissions Office.

Mr. St. George's job was not easy, for this year, as every year, qualified students from all over the United States and several foreign countries applied to Williston. Because the number of openings is limited for each class, many qualified applicants had to be turned away. The most difficult task of the Admissions Office is not whom to accept, but whom to reject. Great attention must be given to all the facets of each applicant. Williston is not interested solely in academic achievements, but also in the general make-up of each boy.

This year, the faculty campus guides were greatly assisted by several seniors who gave of their valuable time to show prospective students and their parents the school. In this way, each applicant could be acquainted more easily with the physical and personal aspects of Williston.

Mrs. Phillips and Mrs. Emerson aid in vital admissions work.

Constant Contact With Alumni

This year, the Alumni Department, an important link between the school and its alumni, was headed by Mr. Moulton. During the course of the year, the Alumni Department corresponded with some 3500 Williston alumni scattered not only all over the country but also all over the world. Not only does the alumni staff include Mr. Moulton and his two secretaries, Mrs. Rueger and Mrs. Mullaly, but it also includes some seven hundred and thirty-three class agents and alumni assistants.

The Alumni Department serves the school in many capacities. Most outstanding of these is the never-ending fund drive. Again this past year, the percentage of financial support of Williston Alumni, 50.3%, ranked high among all secondary schools in the country.

With Mr. Moulton as editor, the Williston Bulletin is published four times a year by the Alumni Department. Emphasizing pictures, the Bulletin includes school news, a report of the Alumni Fund, as well as the class notes. Through the hard work of Mr. Moulton's staff and the generous gifts of Williston alumni, parents, and friends, the school has benefited.

Spring Recess Work Essential to Log

The cooperative forces in any organization are a necessity if the organization is to succeed in its aims. With regard to a yearbook, these must be ever-present in dealing with aspects concerning business, photography, and accurate representations of the facts and moods of the students and faculty. This goal became the chief purpose of this year's Log: to interpret the progress of the year vividly, candidly, and accurately.

The effort to attain this goal was headed by the co-editors-in-chief, Larry Berger and George Hacker. In accordance with this Log's theme, George and Larry tactfully assigned articles and pictures, which would appropriately define the year. Long-range assignments relieved last-minute deadline rushes. Their tenacious efforts paid off manifoldly in the quality and skillful styling of the yearbook.

The sacrifices of the editors, Orrin Baird, Larry Yee, Jim Quisenberry, and many younger editors were necessary to allow the Log to fulfill its theme and reach its exhaustive completion.

The progression and formulation of this year's Log created a yearbook which captured the events, facts, and persons intricately involved in the 1964 - 1965 Williston year.

Willistonian Staff Develops Variety

The Willistonian began the year with more difficulty than usual, for most of the student workers were new, and the faculty adviser, Mr. Stephen A. Randall, was also undertaking his job for the first time.

William Hough and Harvey Kaltsas led the masthead. Chris Bonwit and Richard Reingold were news editors; Bruce Husten was feature editor; and Clifford Sterrett was sports editor. Alan Kelley and Donald Lightfoot secured the advertisements, and Benet Rothstein and Robert Moran undertook the responsibility of sending out Willistonians to parents, alumni, and friends of the school. Peter Schuyler, as photography editor, supplied the paper with most of its pictures. In general, the entire Willistonian staff worked well together.

Although last year's Willistonian received a high credit rating from both the Columbia and National Scholastic Press Associations, both organizations criticized the layout, the photography, the paragraph lengths and balance, and the picture identification. The 1964-65 staff concentrated its efforts on improving these weaknesses.

The Editors-in-Chief themselves took charge of many of the pages during the year. On these pages were feature articles about the Dean of Students, Mr. Hepworth; venerable Mr. Lossone; and that unforgettable Memorial Dormitory maid, Rosie Pepin. The Mystery Mother once again contributed her fine letters to the paper, although many students still refused to believe that a real, warm-blooded American mother did write the letters.

Other new columns added to this year's Willistonian were the "Movie Review" and the "Parents' Corner." Despite the green start, the Willistonian proved to be an informative and interesting school paper.

"The Yankee Pedlar" Highlights Glee Club Season

This year's Glee Club proved to be very successful in its wide range of musical selections and performances. Its success can be attributed to the ambitious and able leadership of director Mr. Henry Teller and president Charles Sullivan. Furthermore, increased practice time of about three hours a week and Sunday chapel performances in blue and gold robes, in which the club appeared, have helped the club immensely.

The Double Quintet, a selected group of ten singers, sang in all of the concerts as well as a few of their own. Social activities, which were held after performances were, on the whole, successful. Singing a diversified range of spiritual and secular music, the club sang well at its many concerts. The annual Christmas Concert, presented by both the Williston and Northampton School for Girls Glee Clubs, was extremely well done. The Winter Term, the heart of the Club's concert schedule, featured much accomplished and effective singing. Singing at the Southampton Congregational Church, MacDuffie School for Girls, a New England Sports banquet, and Northfield, the Club showed its experience and ability as it achieved undeniable excellence. In the Spring Term the Glee Club went for the first time to a joint concert in New Haven. A full-length operetta and a short opera by Mr. Gregory were presented by the combined Glee Clubs of Williston and Northampton School.

The school can be justly proud of its Glee Club. Cooperating fully, members enjoyed their work while upholding the excellent standards achieved in the past.

Literary Society

With Mr. Henchey as faculty adviser, Peter Boffey as president, and Tony Brinkley as editor of the Scribe, the literary society had a very active year. At the open meetings attendance rose, and the increased variety in ideas and styles made the club a true platform for informed argument.

At some meetings submissions to the Scribe were read and criticized by members. This was reflected in the quality of the resulting magazine. At the same time illustrations by the art staff were examined and commented on.

This year's Scribe had its usual quota of student-written plays and an expanded poetry section. The always popular short story form also was well represented. Newly developed talents were represented, as well as older, more polished writers; and in the informal atmosphere of the literary society, anyone willing to spend time necessary for work and revision learned much about creative writing.

While not working on the Scribe, the club listened to records of such writers as Walt Whitman, Dylan Thomas, e. e. cummings, and Samuel Beckett; lectures by Reverend Ives on Moby Dick and the book of Job; some of the better senior English term papers read by their authors and discussed; and a panel discussion on the novels and philosophy of Ayn Rand. The programs were exciting and varied, and many students profited from them.

A Joyous Spanish Gathering

In its second year of existence, La Tertulia continued to give Spanish-speaking students a chance to pursue their extra-curricular interests in Spanish culture. Mr. Rivas, a native-speaking Spaniard and a Williston Spanish teacher, again rendered his able leadership to the club.

At a number of meetings over the course of the year, Mr. Rivas showed slides of his native Spain. Rogelio Novey, the president of the club, also showed slides of his native country, Panama. Many discussions dealing with the culture, literature, and governments of Spanish-speaking nations were held and were led by the many native South American members of the club.

The club's activities also included joint gatherings with the Spanish Clubs of Smith College and The Northampton School for Girls.

To acquaint themselves with the Spanish people, the club began a pen-pal program which proved to be an enjoyable supplement to the Spanish curriculum.

Die Blaue Verbindung this year, in its second year of existence, gave all German-speaking students an opportunity to further their knowledge of German culture and to enjoy themselves at the same time. The twenty-member club was led by Mr. and Mrs. Gould. The club officers were: President George Hacker, secretary Pete Hacker, and treasurer Jeff Bastable. Their activities included climbing Mount Tom, importing German films, and inviting guest speakers. The films were both educational and special feature films with English sub-titles. These films, not restricted to German students only, were popular with the entire student body. Through its varied activities, the German Club provided the German-speaking students with an educational and enjoyable experience.

This year the Press Club took on the demanding duty of reporting information on Williston's many athletic contests. By staying in contact with such papers as the New York Times, the Herald-Tribune, the Boston Globe, and the Springfield Union, the Press Club was able to spread news of Williston's athletic success all over New England. The main function of the club was to report the school's scores; however, a few members did write full-length articles for some of the local papers. Under the watchful eyes of its adviser, Mr. Randall, the Press Club, led by president Doug Tindal, planned to produce a booklet previewing all athletic teams. The pamphlet was designed to be distributed to all schools in competition with Williston. This publication was an innovation of this year's Press Club.

Rare Philatelists

The Stamp Club is a small but enriching organization. Meeting every other Monday, the members discussed certain stamps and their histories. New issues were also commented on. At every opportunity members worked on the school's stamp collection, which contained many interesting varieties. Stamp trading and selling were a major part of each meeting, as members bargained and haggled for upwards of half an hour. Officers were: Doug Aykroyd '65, president; Larry Yee '65, vice-president; and Park Fay '65, secretary - treasurer. In the spring term, the club held a stamp display. Consisting of the better parts of members' collections, it proved to be very educational to the school.

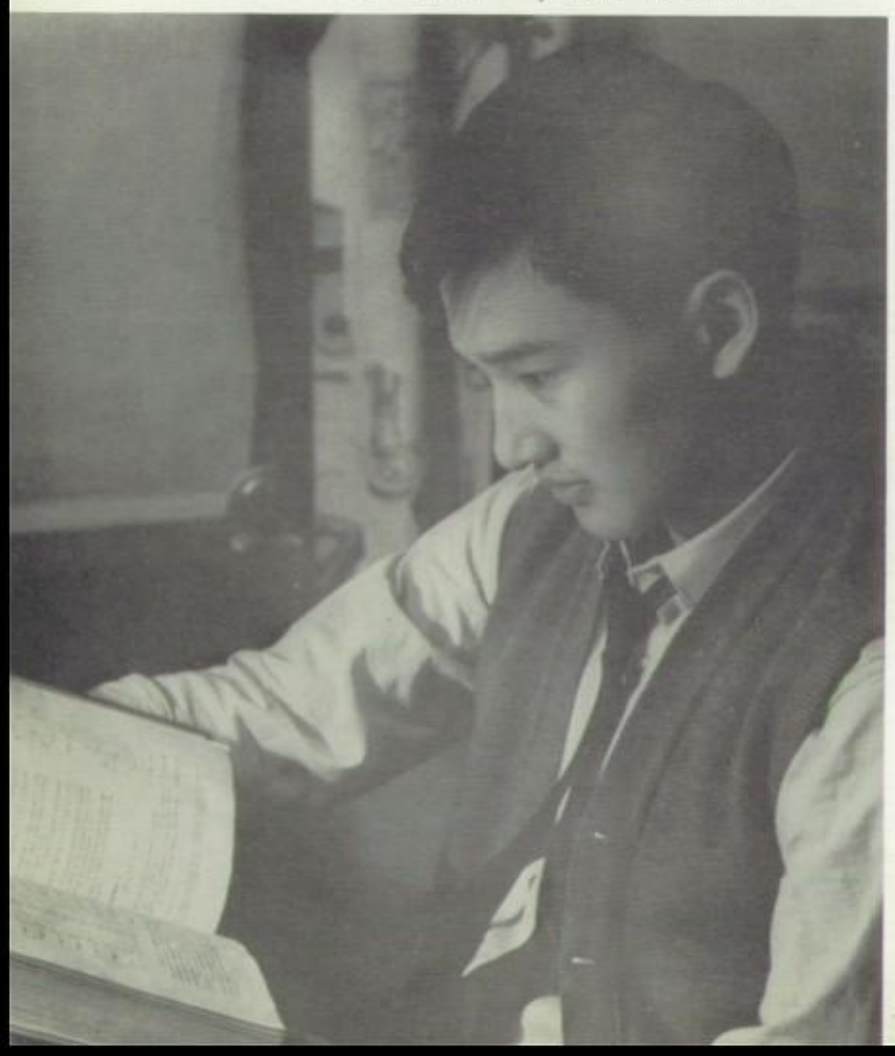
Science and Medical Club Stresses Research

Alex Chen — future scientist.



The amalgamation of the two scientific clubs at Williston produced what is now known as the Science and Medical Club. The purpose of this extra-curricular activity was to introduce to interested students of science the wonderful world of discovery through research. Pursuing science as a career was stressed.

Under the direction of Mr. Highley, the Science and Medical Club presented movies and discussions on subjects such as aeronautics, flight, disease, conservation, and first aid. Many boys who joined with no major interest in pursuing medicine or science, became interested and decided that they would like to follow a profession in either of these two fields.

The club was a guidance program, which opened to Williston students the ever-widening, modernizing field of science. The large enrollment of sixty members depicted the increasing interest of students in the scientific world. This large enrollment kept the club a successful, purposeful organization.

Besides the evening movies and discussions, the club planned to visit several nearby hospitals and clinics in the Spring Term in an endeavor to instill a true scientific motivation in its members. Its success in this attempt strengthened and confirmed the value of the Science and Medical Club to Williston.

Chess Club Undefeated

Mr. Horace Thorner has been the adviser to the Williston Chess Club throughout the club's fifteen-year existence. This year's chess club reached a record enrollment of approximately thirty members. Larry Yee '65 was president, and Doug Tindal '65 was vice-president.

Meeting every Thursday night in the Plimpton Library, the members competed in a ladder system in order to qualify for the chess team. This year's team, composed of Alan Kelsey '65, Pete Stasz '65, Dick Powell '66, Tom Stasz '67, John Kirk '67, Larry Yee '65, and Mark Zanger '66, had an unprecedented undefeated and untied season. Thanks to Mr. Thorner's coaching, the team easily won its first chess meet against Monson.

The highlight of the year was the Western Massachusetts Chess Tournament, which was held for the fifth consecutive year at Williston. Several Williston boys played in the tournament and, as a result, the already high standards of Williston chess were substantially raised.

Photography Club Aids Publications

Through one small darkroom on the first level of the Science Building passes the work of the Williston Photography Club: nearly all the pictures for this yearbook, the eighteen issues of the Willistonian, and the Williston Bulletin. In addition, members work occasionally on publicity pictures, college portraits, and personal work.

Mr. Couch, the club's faculty adviser and requisition signer, and Mr. Lapidus offered useful advice and training and, in the case of the latter, comic relief with a darkroom flood. Activities of the group included portrait, sports, architectural, candid, and trick photography with the use of new techniques of lighting, developing, printing, and composing. Mr. Lapidus branched out and became the only cameraman for a student written, directed, and acted silent movie during the fall term.

Williston Theatre Has Most Productive Season Ever

This year, under the direction of Mr. Thomas Kelley, the Williston Dramatic Club continued to produce plays in the club's fine tradition.

Jon Broderick, a leading actor in many of the plays, served as the club's president, and Don Jacobson and Craig Baumer were vice-president and secretary. The club also was assisted by Mr. Gregory and the many faculty wives who helped with the make-up. Mr. Richmond helped to build the many sets needed for the different plays.

Sticking to the traditions of putting on top-flight classical drama at Williston, the thespians produced Ibsen's Enemy of the People in the fall term. This play was put on with the cooperation of the Mask and Wig of Northampton School for Girls.

Turning to a much more historical note in the Winter Term, the club produced Maxwell Anderson's play about the beginning of the decline of the Roman Empire, The Golden Six. This play, also put on with the Mask and Wig, introduced much new talent that will be with the club in future years. In the Spring Term, for the first time in its history, the club ventured to put on a play outside of the Boardman Auditorium. Written by T. S. Eliot, Murder in the Cathedral was given in St. Philip's Episcopal Church in Easthampton.

The Studio Theatre turned out to be a very profitable experience for those Williston students interested in directing and writing plays as well as acting in them. Senior Tony Brinkley served as the club's president.

Because of their hard work and great devotion to the Dramatic Arts, the students in the Dramatic Club and the Studio Theatre provided the Williston family and the local residents with fine cultural entertainment.

Foreign Affairs Club Has Busy Year

This year the Foreign Affairs Club had an active schedule. Besides the regular meetings, the club attended several conferences. In the Fall Term, it had its annual meeting with the Northampton School for Girls and discussed "Unaligned Nations and Their Effect on World Politics." The club's representatives also attended the conference at the Weston School in Weston, Massachusetts, where they analyzed "Japan and Its Future in the Free World."

Other than the regular bi-weekly meetings in the Winter Term, two new activities were enjoyed. The first was a talk by Williston's German Exchange Student, Rainer Wedlich, who spoke on "Germany, a Country Divided."

Later, Williston delegates attended the Smith College Colloquy on "Apartheid Problem in South Africa." In the Spring, the Club went to the conference at Emma Willard School for Girls and had another meeting with Northampton School.

Sailing Boasts Large Enrollment

The Williston Sailing Club attracted many new faces to its ranks this year. Commodore Craig Baumer, the club's leader, attributed this growth to the fact that many new boys, who have had previous sailing experience, found the club an exciting and interesting pre-season stimulation to the sport of sailing.

The Sailing Club is fortunate to have six boats of the gannet class on nearby Norwich Lake. These boats are for the enjoyment of club members, as well as for the competition of team members.

As in past years, any boy out for the team first had to be a member of the Sailing Club. This rule allowed the boys to profit from recreational and competitive sailing.

Although the club's activities were somewhat hampered during the Fall Term by the strict athletic schedule, Commodore Baumer and Vice-Commodore Dick English headed the club in many interesting evening meetings.

In past years the club's activities were terminated during the Spring Term to allow the sailing team time in which to practice and compete. Mr. Heath, the club's new adviser, had expectations of a spring term of continued Sailing Club activities. An outing and other social activities were the planned highlights of the Spring Term.

Student Council Leads School

The Williston Student Council is the student-governing body of the school. The Council is of invaluable importance because it is the students' main representative link with the faculty. However, the responsibilities of the Council go far beyond making requests of the faculty.

In the dormitories, the councilors have many and varied jobs. It is each councilor's duty to check each student in at the beginning of study hall, at the end of study hall, and at lights-out. These stereotyped jobs are carried out automatically. A far more difficult task is keeping general order in the dormitories and around the school. Each councilor must have the respect of his fellow students because the authority he bears can easily place him in an awkward position. By constantly approving, aiding, encouraging, and understanding their councilees, the councilors earned the respect of the whole school.

Along with their daily dormitory checks, members took charge of study halls and checked attendance at various school assemblies. The Council also represented the student body in requests of the faculty. The Council had to be on guard not to alienate itself from the rest of the school as its responsibilities increased.

Under the leadership of Benet Rothstein, president; Rogelio Novey, vice-president; William Carpenter, secretary; and Rodman Greene, treasurer, this year's Council produced effective student government.

"Y" Cabinet Supports Child

This year's Y-Cabinet carried on the responsibility of sustaining its adopted son, Lam Van Ut, in South Vietnam. To raise the necessary money for him, the Cabinet held Williston's largest dance, which featured "The Belvederes." The profits from this dance were not sufficient to support the foster child; therefore, once each term, the Y-Cabinet allocated the Sunday chapel offering for Lam Van Ut. Members of the Y-Cabinet also enjoyed correspondence with Lam Van Ut.

This year's members helped lead daily chapel and also extended their duties to designating where the Sunday offerings would go. Furthermore, the Y-Cabinet continued the practice of collecting magazines for veterans' hospitals.

Honor Committee Upholds School Standards

The integrity of each individual varies; thus, it is impossible to judge every student on an equal basis. For some students the idea of right and wrong has never been conceived; if authority does not dominate over some students, then dishonesty exists. It has been the responsibility of the Honor Committee to handle cases of stealing, cheating and lying and to make suggestions and recommendations to the Headmaster as to what measures should be taken.

The Honor Committee was composed of seven seniors and nine upper middlers who were chosen by the Headmaster for their scholastic achievements and their reputable characters. The Committee met whenever unfortunate events occurred which made its judgment and evaluation necessary. Coping with the few offenders this year was an admonition to all who still doubted that honesty is the best policy. Through the Honor Committee Williston hoped to instill honesty into the characters of its students in order to create a better environment in which students could live and work.

Seniors Aid As Guides

The student guides were organized for the first time this year. After the sudden death of Director of Admissions Mr. Shepardson, a need for student guides arose so that this burden would not be left to the faculty admission committee. Headmaster Stevens appointed a group of fifteen seniors to serve in this capacity. Thus, candidates interested in Williston were able to get a student's view of the school.

The guides also served other purposes. During the annual Williston conference of colleges and secondary schools, the fifteen seniors were hosts to visiting educators. Through the freely-given efforts of these seniors, Williston extended a welcoming hand to the visitors present throughout the year.

Athletics

The Athletic Department

This year, Williston was fortunate to possess one of the few indoor prep school hockey rinks. Williston owes much to Mr. Lash. He organized all of the teams and arranged over three hundred and fifty athletic events. Personifying the Williston spirit, Mr. Lash was an enthusiastic spectator at Williston's contests. Often attending to numerous athletic injuries, Mr. Lash was an excellent example of the personal relationship between students and faculty at Williston.

Late Triumphs Even Season

'This year's Williston football team was greatly hindered at the beginning of its season because the players lacked the experience of working together. However, as the season progressed and the players combined their individual talents into a united effort, the team was rewarded by a very strong showing.

Co-captains Dave Bourdeau and Steve Striebel were a driving force. Hindered by a lack of experienced seniors, the coaches employed numerous underclassmen. However, in the first four games, inexperience showed above a strong desire, and the team was faced with a record of three losses and one tie.

In the opening game of the season, the Wildcats faced a strong Vermont team on Sawyer Field. After a rugged, scoreless first half, the Wildcats were unable to contain their foes, and the game ended in a 36-0 triumph for Vermont. The following week, Hotchkiss tied Williston in a heartbreaker. The 40-22 loss to Loomis was no indication of the way the game was played, as Williston was plagued with a series of bad breaks. The final loss of the season came at the hands of Taft, 24-8.

By Parents' Day the team had gained the experience to confidently meet Suffield. A strong finish by the visitors was not enough to overcome Williston's lead, and the game ended in a 14-8 victory for the Wildcats. Having gained momentum, Williston rolled over Wilbraham, 38 to 22, and finished the season with a 6-2 victory over St. Paul's.

The coaches of this year's team — Mr. Francis, Mr. Carpenter, and Mr. LoBello — deserve much credit for the way they molded the team into a unit and for the way they used the players. Because Steve Striebel suffered numerous injuries, Mr. Francis utilized several underclassmen very well. Dave Bourdeau was finally settled in the line, where his blocking played a vital role in the final three games.

With experience and confidence, this year's football team proved itself to be a worthy opponent for any of its adversaries.

At the beginning of this year, the members of the soccer team hoped to have an undefeated soccer season. With many lettermen returning, the outlook looked promising. Roger Walaszek provided the team with explosive scoring, and Benny Zabek, a capable goalie, gave the team defensive strength.

Under the excellent leadership of Co-captains Wes Esser and Skip Jarocki, the team jumped off to a fine start with five wins and one tie. Williston was tied for the league lead when it met an undefeated Suffield team. This game engendered dynamic performances from both teams. However, Williston suffered its first loss at home by a score of 5-3, and later lost to Deerfield, 3-2. Despite these two defeats, the team finished with a reputable record of 8-2-1. Coaches Messrs. Babcock and Brown, playing a key role in the team's success, were pleased by their fine record.

The Alfred J. Ekblom, Jr. Memorial Trophy, which is given to the player considered as the most acclaimed scholar-athlete on the team, was awarded to Co-captain Wes Esser.

Our record should have been 4 and 3; it was 6 and 1." This speech manifests the individual effort put out by each boy on the squad. The highlight of the season was when Peter Stasz set the new course record of 13 minutes, 59.9 seconds, against Lenox. Williston's second year of Cross Country produced an exceptional record.

Forming a good balance of experienced skill and new talent, this year's Varsity Basketball team continued to improve on last year's record. The nucleus of the team was centered around last year's returning starters: Skip Jarocki, Bennie Zabek, and Roger Walaszek. The remaining two positions were played by newcomers Jerry O'Neill and Wes Esser. Skip and Wes directed the offense, whereas Roger, Bennie, and Jerry did most of the scoring and rebounding. The team proved to be a smooth-functioning unit, as was witnessed by the quintet's fast breaking and constant scoring.

The team ran into little trouble until the Williston quintet faced a powerful Worcester team. The game was very close until Roger fouled out in the fourth quarter. However, the team pulled itself back together and finished the season with a 19-1 record.

After the last game of the season, the team, for the second year in a row, was invited to the New England Tournament. Williston was seeded first, but lost to Worcester in the semi-finals. The success of this year's team was attributed to its outstanding talent coupled with its great desire to win.

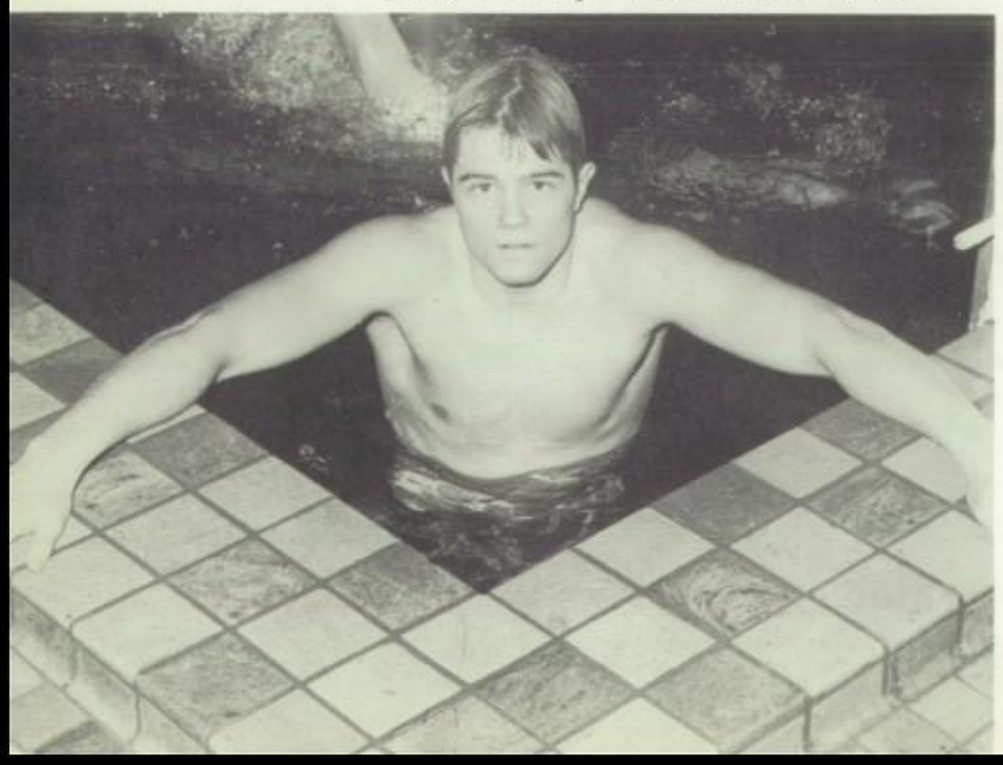
Co-captain Jim Edwards — National Prep School record-holder.



This year's Swimming Team, although its won-loss record was not as good as that of the 1964 team, was by far the most outstanding team Williston has yet had. Whereas previous teams have had four or five outstanding men, this team had outstanding men plus great depth. The team exhibited its great depth at the New England Interscholastics, where it beat Andover, taking five firsts to Andover's four; thus, the winning of the meet boiled down to the valuable points of the second through sixth positions.

Without a doubt, the most outstanding member of the team was Jim Edwards. Jim had gone to the 1964 Olympic trials the previous summer and had missed a spot on the relay team by .1 second. During the season he bettered his own national mark of 1964 in the 200-yard free-style by one second, turning in a 1:47.3. Swimming against Dartmouth, Edwards smashed the national mark in the 100 free by .5 second with a time of 0:48.0. He repeated this time at the New England Interscholastic meet. Jim's most competitive race, however, was against Olympian Don Schollander when Williston swam the Yale freshmen at Yale. Schollander, who later said it would take "two months to recover from that one," swam a 0:47.5 to Jim's 0:47.6.

Other outstanding men were: diver, Bill Murphy; free-stylers, Al Ackermann, Fred Gilbert, Jim Boulware, Lew Davis, Dick Sartore; backstroker, Ross Prossner; breaststroker, Ron Varney; and butterflymen, Glenn Yngve, and Bill Denton. All told, the team established seven new national marks and a good winning season.

The" Ice-Palace" Aids Hockey Team

With the opening of the Masters' Rink, hockey received its much-needed artificial ice. Under the guidance of Coach Carpenter, the team compiled a record of six wins and nine losses. Perhaps the most hampering injury was the loss of starting defenseman Steve Leary, who was hurt in the second game and missed the remainder of the season.

The season began with the opening ceremonies of the Masters' Rink, when the Springfield Indians played an intra-squad game, with members of the Williston team substituting. In the first game, Williston beat Cranwell. Being outscored, 18-5, in the next five games, Williston fell into a slump by losing to Agawam, Cathedral, Lenox, Vermont Academy, and Mount Hermon. With victories over Suffield. Cushing, and Longmeadow, the team began to jell. But Williston then dropped three more to Wilbraham, Vermont, and Loomis. Two wins and a loss ended this year's hockey season.

Captain Bill Carpenter led his team and set the pace for some excellent hockey. In addition to Carpenter, the forward line featured Carl Stevens and Bob Reeve, while Barry Quinn and Reed Gramse filled in at the defensive positions. The second lines included: Bill Hartt and Peter Prudden, wings; Bob Murphy, center; and Stu Adams and Dick English, defensemen. Dave Barton was the first-string goalie, while Don Jacobson substituted for him.

First Place: New England Class "C" Tournament.

Wrestlers Class C Champions

A new breed of wrestling was evident in this year's team due to the influence of the wrestling coach, Mr. Knauf. Having wrestled in college, the coach did not only know the basics of wrestling, but also was adept at demonstrating and executing holds, rides, reversals, and most essentially, pins. Mr. Knauf's ability to teach his skill became known to Williston through the honors received by its wrestlers.

Chris Zook placed first in the M. I. T. Tournament over Christmas recess and, later in the season, in the Class C Tournament held at Newton, Mass., skillfully attained a first place and the honor of being the most outstanding wrestler in the tournament. The team performed equally well in the Class C Tournament by winning the overall team trophy and finishing with five finalists. All of these wrestlers had been taught and conditioned to win; this motivation became the goal of each individual on the team.

Rick Bryant keeps in shape at Holyoke slope.

Because of the lack of snow, Williston's Ski Team had a short season, having to cancel the majority of its meets. The skiers used their own slopes for their only two meets and also for a few practices. Most of the skiing, however, was done on the Mt. Tom slopes, where conditions were better. But the skiing done there was purely recreational, as no practices or meets were allowed to be held because of the new rule set forth by the Mt. Tom owners.

The first meet, held against a weak Amherst Freshman team, included a two-run slalom, with Pete Sinclair and Pete Wheelock taking first and second, respectively. However, Pete Wheelock, the first man for Williston on the downhill course, had an accident in which he broke both arms. Subsequently, the downhill was cancelled. The second meet was held against Choate. Williston, skiing without the injured Pete Wheelock, dropped the meet by a close score. A further reason for the loss was the steadiness of the Choate team.

In spite of limited ski conditions, the Williston ski team displayed its talent. The team was led by co-captains "Teak" Kelley and Doug Watson. Coach Gould supervised the varsity for the first time this year, while Mr. Heath and Mr. Highley instructed the other skiers.

Mr. Lawton Praises Team

This year, the Squash Team, coached by Mr. Lawton, was fortunate to have a returning letterman for each of the five starting positions. With the addition of a new coach, Mr. Seybolt, the team received more coaching on some of the finer points of the game. As a result, the team was able to improve upon last year's record.

Showing good balance and strength, the team posted seven wins and four losses. Playing each team on the schedule twice, the squashers defeated each opponent at least once, except for the Trinity Freshmen. Led by Captain Vorley, who posted the best individual record, the team's dual victories came against Choate J. V. and Cranwell.

Baseball Faces Tough Opponents

After losing to a more experienced Loomis team, the Williston baseball team defeated Wilbraham by a decisive score of 3-1. The team had six returning lettermen this year — Captain Bill Carpenter, Skip Jarocki, Roger Walaszek, Jim Soja, Jack Zabek, and Jesse Robinson. Along with this group will be new boys, Jim Coffee, Bob Murphy, and Ed Schmitter, while Rick Richards, Bill O'Brien, John Hedbring, and Dave Barton, coming up from the J. V.'s will add experience and depth to the team.

The hitting attack, sparked by Jarocki, Walaszek, and Coffee, will progress very well, although the attack was very weak in the season's opener at Loomis. The pitching, ably handled by Zabek and Soja, should prove to be a major factor in the team's success.

The only apparent weakness in the team will be the infield at the beginning of the season. But under Mr. Carpenter's skillful coaching and with the help of newcomer Coffee, the defense should tighten up rapidly.

Anchored by Jarocki in centerfield, the outfielders Soja, Zabek and O'Brien will perform admirably. Walaszek should easily handle the job of catcher.

Coach Carpenter is very optimistic this year. With such a well-balanced offense and defense, he feels that this baseball season will be an extremely successful one.

Netmen Face New Opponents

With a nucleus of four returning lettermen, Coach Hepworth is looking forward to a successful season. The four returning lettermen include Captain Dick Allen, Bob Childs, Albert Spencer, and Orrin Baird. The first four positions are already pinned down by these four lettermen. However, Bill Denton, Peter Thompson, Peter Hock, and Ed Gillis are in close contention for the remaining spots on the team. The tough competition between both the lettermen and the newcomers for each position will surely improve the calibre of play of the team.

With Bob Childs and Dick Allen playing steady singles in the first two positions, the team should be strong in that competition. The doubles teams also should play a decisive role in the success of the team.

Constantly adding helpful hints to improve a player's game, and witty remarks to improve the team's morale, Coach Hepworth bears much of the responsibility for the success of the team. However, this year's team will have trouble improving last year's excellent record, now that two powerful opponents — Westminster and Taft — have been added to the schedule.

Early Practice Readies Lacrosse

The prospects for this year's lacrosse team are far from optimistic. With only seven returning lettermen, the team expects only fair results. Chris Zook, team captain, stated "Considering the large number of lettermen graduating last year, this year's team will have to devote more time to mastering the basics of the game, gaining a certain amount of confidence and experience, and conditioning itself to meet the challenge of the first few tough games on the schedule."

With the return of such lower classmen as Ed Green, Cliff Sterrett, Carl Stevens, Rolf Bortner, and Dan Gould, the offense should function successfully, while the defense, led by goalie Peter Prudden and Gary Starr, will undoubtedly aid the anticipated fifty percent win - loss record.

Mr. Archbald moved up from his J. V. position to coach the varsity squad. Assisting him in training the team are Messrs. Doty and Griffin, who were former Williston lacrosse stars. Through the rigorous practices, intra-squad scrimmages, and strenuous drills, this year's relatively novice lacrosse team will develop rapidly, and finish the season with a respectable record.

Trackmen Seek Improvement

This year, under the direction of Mr. Norman Nelson, the varsity track team will seek to improve last year's record. The team will be much stronger in the weight events than last year's team but will lack depth in the sprints . The main weakness of the team is in the hurdles. Williston's entries in these races all lack valuable experience. However, the diligent early-season practices foretell much improvement and possible success in all the track and field events.

With the return of eleven key lettermen, hopes for the season are far from pessimistic. Peter Stasz and Bill Brown will run the distance races, and Kent Tynan, Bob Nugon, and Dick Bright will strengthen the novice sprinters. Newcomer Jerry O'Neill will undoubtedly reinforce the already-powerful weightmen. Putting the shot, throwing the javelin, and hurling the discus will be up to Al Kelly, Dick Rowe, and Don Gordon. Bob Trombley will return to the broad jump this season and Glenn Yngve to the pole vault.

The team opens its season against a powerful Mount Hermon squad and terminates the season there in the Interscholastics. In addition to seven dual meets and the Interscholastics, Williston will participate in the Deerfield Relays.

Assisting Mr. Nelson will be Mr. Culver in the weight events, and Mr. Bedrosian in the sprints.

Early Start Aids Sailing

This year's sailing team did not suffer a loss in team strength with the loss of four lettermen from last year's team. The experience of this year's squad equals that of last year's. With the return of lettermen Ned York, team captain, Dick English, Jon Mead, Craig Baumer, and Chris Bonwit the team should attain an outstanding record for 1965.

As a result of the mild winter, Norwich Lake, the place where Williston boats are anchored and sailed, thawed early this spring, allowing the team more time to practice, navigating the various courses on the lake, to practice tacking, and to perfect their starts.

Coaches Heath and Cody are optimistic about this year's team record. Mr. Heath stated, "The sailing team will probably lose two or three meets due to the stiff competition, but the season on the whole will be a winning one." Through the coaches' guidance, the team crews polish their techniques, and gain experience sailing under racing conditions.

Much of the competition the J. V. will face will be enjoyable. Such meets as the one with the Northfield School for Girls bring much variety and fun into the sport. Although the J. V. does not have such a rigorous schedule this year as does the varsity, it will still drill and observe varsity skill.

The sailing team has depth, experience, and the support of many lower classmen, and through the efforts of the coaches and the individual crews the team should finish with a notable record.

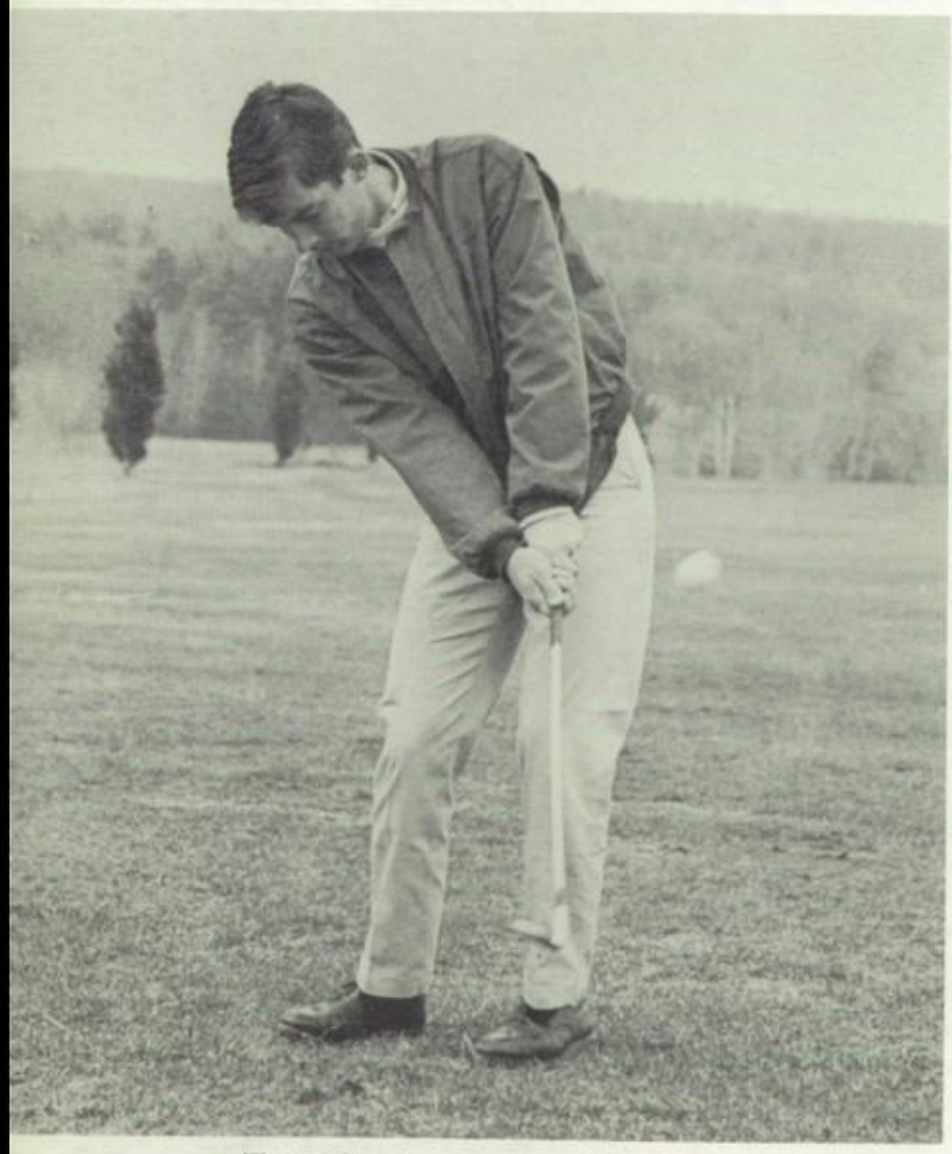
The Williston Golf Team's returning lettermen Peter Severud, Larry Berger, Bill Murphy, Tom Crosby, and Bob Reeve form a strong nucleus for this season's competition. Supplementing the team will be John Branciforte, Doug Watson, and newcomer Mark Lukash. After an early season 12-6 victory over Monson, Coach Babcock predicted a successful season.

Although the team will prove itself capable in all positions, the decisive factor will come from the last few positions. However, the team is well rounded and powerful. Because the majority of the matches are to be played on the short Southampton Golf Course, pitching, chipping, and putting accuracy will be the necessary facts for a winning season.

Mr. Varnum will aid Coach Babcock and Captain Severud in training the J. V. golfers. Many of the boys who play the course this spring will not always compete.



Tom Crosby plays a chip shot.

With many new features, the Prom proved to be an enjoyable event for all the students who attended. This year's innovations included a party given by the faculty after the Prom for seniors and their dates. There was also a Sunday afternoon dance with the Belvederes. Such decorations as large kegs, a woven ceiling and murals on the walls, created the atmosphere for "Sammy's Cellar." Couples danced till midnight to the music of Dick Hamilton and his band.

The Prom Committee, headed by Chris Zook and under the guidance of Mr. Couch, was responsible for the success of the Prom. Also contributing an effort to make the Prom possible were: Mr. and Mrs. Rothstein; Mr. and Mrs. Stevens; Mr. and Mrs. Couch; and the faculty members and their wives who served as chaperones.

Coming in the middle of the winter term, the Belvedere Sunday afternoon dance proved to be one of the social highlights this year. This dance was sponsored by the Y-Cabinet and was the largest regular dance of the year.

Rich (alias Savage)
So the year is over and we'll all be heading away by separate routes. It'll be hard for me to get used to the fact that I won't be seeing many of my friends so frequently as the classmates I've come to know and love. I'd don't be surprised if I appear one day in the Boston area, so I don't look for a phone call. Good luck always

Mr. Stevens confers with Benet.

Contributions of '65

The achievements of a senior class are not easily defined. Academics and athletics are only a part of the many determining factors. School morale can only be produced by interested students and selfless individuals who are an influencing majority. The seniors displayed their enthusiasm throughout the many fall athletic contests to make Williston's records not only reputable, but outstanding. Contributions and services of the senior class included Senior Scholastic Committee, head and leaders of the Honor Committee, senior guides, Student Council officers and team captains.

The integrity and honesty of the individuals were judged by the seniors who headed the Honor Committee and Student Council. Their leadership helped Williston maintain the morale of the student body. The Senior Scholastic Committee gave assistance to those with academic failings, and set many in the direction of honor grades. The countless hours devoted by seniors to Williston's ever-expanding campus life were in themselves great achievements, for they made students better prepared as scholars and persons.

With the addition of the new facilities, the Class of 1965 took good advantage of its opportunity to enhance school morale and to further Williston in its quest for excellence in the field of college preparation. The majestic new chapel offered a beneficial atmosphere for prayer and reflection never attained in the old chapel. The addition of a chaplain to the school had been a most needed improvement, providing an understanding listener and captivating personality to school life. The culmination of these factors produced a better social atmosphere and more intense scholastic background.

The vestiges left by the Class of 1965 will be soon glazed over and dimmed by future classes, but the experiences we have encountered are indelible and essential parts of our characters and of Williston. The growing pains of a class of boys developing into men over a few short years are many and varied, but both Williston and the Class of 1965 have been greatly enriched in the process.

Sincerely,
Benet Rothstein

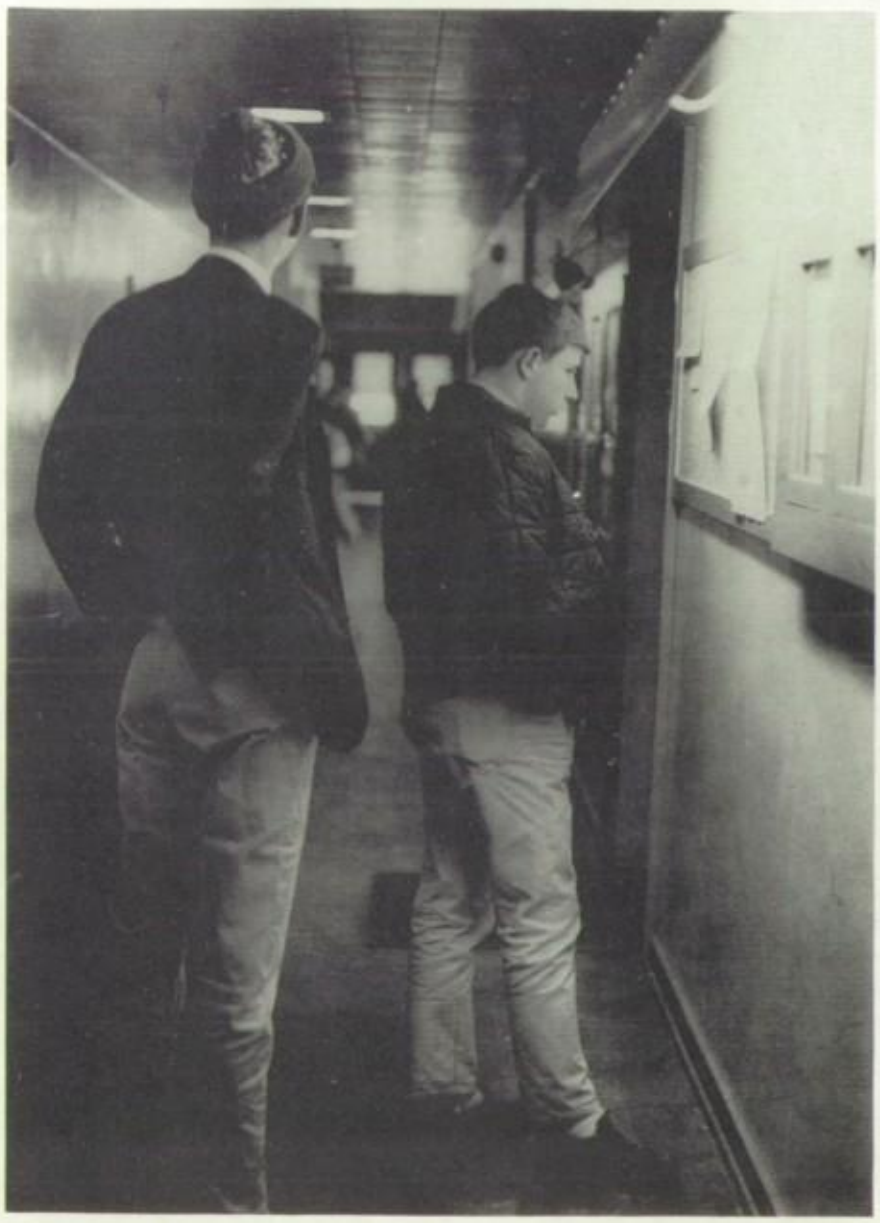
Senior Scholastic Committee

Barry Fries checks Senior Scholastic Committee tutoree list.



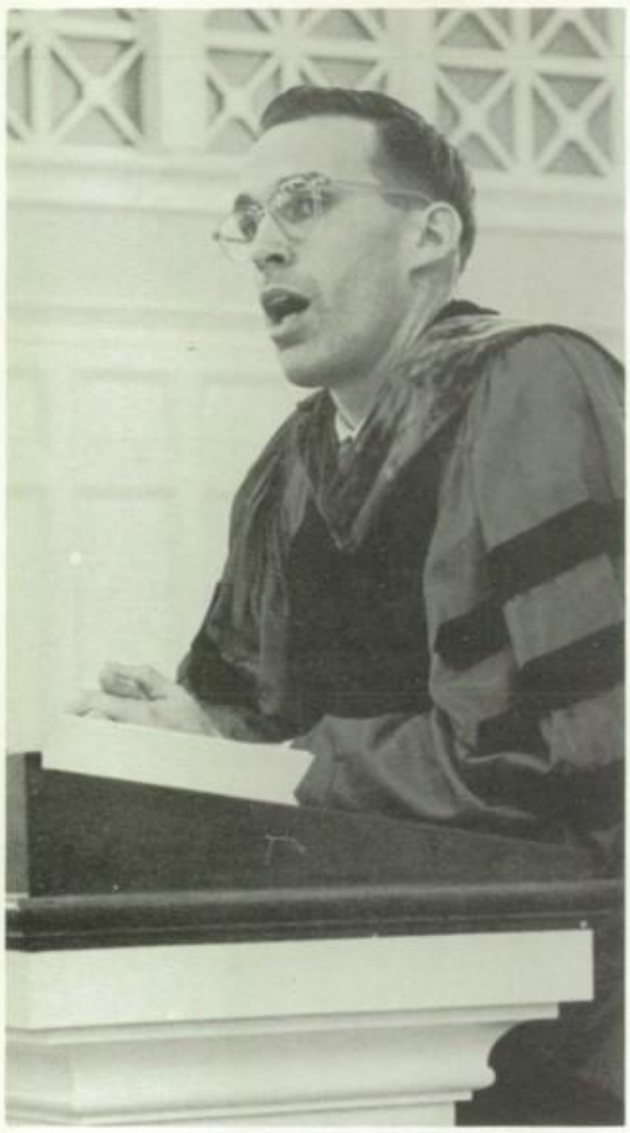
The Senior Scholastic Committee is Williston's tutoring service operated by those Seniors who excel in specific courses and who can find time to help those in need of scholastic aid.

This year the committee operated much the same as it has in previous years. The faculty recommended only those boys for tutoring who they thought were deserving and who would make use of the service. Every two weeks the list of tutorees was changed, and each tutoree had to contact his committee member for aid. It was felt that in this way, the tutoree would prove his desire to help.

This year the committee was headed by Michael Smernoff, Chairman, and Tony Brinkley, Secretary. Approximately twenty other able Seniors comprised the rest of the committee. The members made their own arrangements for meetings with their tutorees. These sessions were usually held during study hours or after athletics. The committee was not operating to prepare boys for specific tests, but to help each boy develop the proper attitude toward and method of study.

Underclassmen were introduced into the committee this year. It was felt that their admission would help form a sound organization for next year.

Cum Laude Society

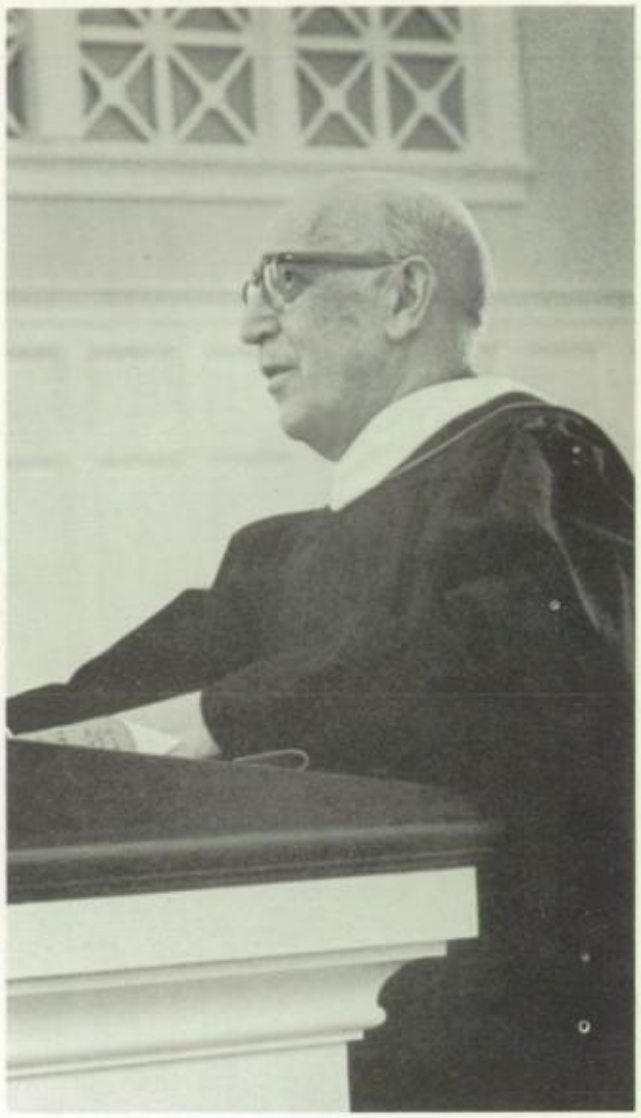


Son, Robert '47, and . . .

The Williston Chapter of the Cum Laude Society, equivalent to Phi Beta Kappa on the college level, held its annual mid-year induction ceremony on February 10. This year the ceremony was conducted in the Chapel because it has a larger seating capacity than the auditorium.

The selection of the boys to be inducted was a very difficult task, as many Seniors had fulfilled the requirements of the Society. However, only the top ten per cent of the graduating class could be inducted at this time. At graduation the next ten per cent of the Senior class will be inducted.

Dean Charles Rouse, President of the Williston chapter, charged the inductees, and Dr. Robert Rouse '47, his son, then addressed those present.



. . . father, Dean Rouse, lead induction.

". . . the greatest moment of the year."
